3rd year student of Eurasian National University, Astana
Supervisor – Khoich A.

Foreign direct investment is the investment of capital with a view to acquiring a long-term economic interest in the country of capital application, which ensures the control of the investor over the object of placement of capital. The main forms of foreign direct investment are the opening abroad of enterprises, including the establishment of subsidiaries or the opening of branches, the creation of joint ventures, the purchase of a controlling stake in the enterprises of the donor country and etc [1, 2].

Investment in the real sector of the national economy can lead and be the vehicle to realize the State Program of Rapid Industrial Innovative Development of Kazakhstan. Unfortunately, not always asked demand can be supplied in all spheres due to growing demand. That is why, foreign direct investment is important and can be solution to this. Namely because of this President of Kazakhstan Nursultan Nazarbayev made an emphasis on promotion of foreign investments in his address to the nation in 2012. He claimed that country should prepare legislation system that will create better business investment climate for attracting more foreign direct investment [3].

As for Kazakhstan, research has shown that for more than ten years, over $ 250 billion of foreign direct investment has been invested in Kazakhstan. Leaders in this direction were
